Mainmatter

Embroider is of crucial importance for the future of Ember. It will enable new capabilities planned for Polaris, allow decreasing bundle sizes, and open a path towards to benefitting from modern build tooling like Vite.

Embroider remaining unshipped represents a substantial risk for the entire Ember ecosystem and for the investments that companies have made that build on Ember.

Mainmatter has a team of 2 people working on Embroider for 6 months with guidance and support from Ed Faulkner.

Our goal is to ship Embroider, make it the default for new apps and addons and kickstart development of a Vite plugin for Ember.
